Docket NO. E-2 SUB 1219

As a Duke Energy customer, I do not believe that I should have to bear the burden of the coal ash clean up costs in which Duke Energy was the culprit.

Duke Energy's own insurers are refusing to cover costs associated with Duke's coal ash liabilities "because Duke failed to take reasonable measures to avoid and/or mitigate" the damages resulting from coal ash disposal.

Duke Energy is the country's largest utility and their shareholders can afford to pay for the company's mistakes as well as benefit from their profits. They don't need a bailout from North Carolina residents.

Thank you,
Andrea Crook
